

29 November 1968

I have asked [ ] to hand-carry this note to you. My principal object is to thank you for your effective assistance in arranging [ ] assignment, which I hope will be profitable to him, to us and to CINCPAC -- and, in some fall-out way, to you. To the best of our understanding, all of the administrative procedures and mechanics that you raised have been taken care of in the manner you recommended. Should there be any loose ends in this area, however, please fire off a cable and I will have them tied up at once.

[ ] can fill you in on activities and atmospherics back here and can outline in more detail precisely what it is he does for us that made us feel this CINCPAC tour would be mutually beneficial. You will be interested to know that on several occasions I have heard the boss comment most favorably on the support you gave us during the [ ] conference last summer. Both the Station and you yourself made many nickels with the 7th floor in those few hours. Please give my best to [ ] your wife and all our friends. I owe you at least one first class dinner and look forward to squaring that debt when you next visit Washington.

As ever.
